7. Reporting improper behaviour

It is the responsibility of the Board to monitor and ensure compliance with the Code of Conduct and to record, investigate and, where necessary, take action in respect of suspected breaches.

Ensuring compliance with this Code is not always easy and we therefore ask for your help. If you suspect that any fraudulent or unethical behaviour has occurred, you should contact any member of the Board, the Managing Director or the Company Secretary. The Company does not expect that concerned members of staff (Whistleblowers) will have unquestionable evidence to support their suspicions. It is the Company's responsibility to investigate and determine whether the suspicions are justified and supported by evidence.

All communications from Whistleblowers will be treated with the strictest confidence and the Whistleblower's identity will not be revealed without their consent. Provided that the concern is raised in good faith, Whistleblowers will not be at any risk of losing their job or suffering any form of reprisal for coming forward. Furthermore, the Company will take all reasonable steps to prevent the harassment or victimisation of the Whistleblower. However, no assurances are offered to members of staff who maliciously raise matters which they know to be untrue. This will be regarded as misconduct and dealt with accordingly.

The Board, the Managing Director or the Company may refer matters raised by Whistleblowers to a designated investigating officer. Investigations will be conducted confidentially and, if the Whistleblower requests, without disclosing the Whistleblower's identity. In rare cases, it may not be possible to ensure complete confidentiality (eg if legal proceedings take place), however the Whistleblower's identity will not be revealed without their consent and the Company will do everything possible to support and protect the Whistleblower.

The investigating officer will keep the Whistleblower informed with regard to the progress of the investigation and what action, if any, the Company will take in response to the Whistleblower's concerns.
